Keywords/Questions: git init git status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesage)" git log  Motes: To initialize Git, you have to write git init. You can see that is active be typing is -a which shows the hidden files. To start committing change: we have to add the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file is ready to be committed. To commit now you perform the command git commit_m "(mesage)" the -m means that we_actually want to add a mesage to the committed version. I MUST BE AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION. And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committon mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	Topic/Title:	(ii) >
git init git status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesa git log  To initialize Git, you have to write git init. You can see that is active be typing Is -a which shows the hidden files. To start commiting changes we have to add the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we actually want to add a mesage to the commited version. I MUST BE AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION. And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committion mesag in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	Git Hub
git init git status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesa git log  To initialize Git, you have to write git init. You can see that is active be typing Is -a which shows the hidden files. To start commiting changes we have to add the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we actually want to add a mesage to the commited version. I MUST BE AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION. And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committion mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed
git status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesage)" git log  mathematical status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesage)" git log  mathematical status git add file_name git commit -m "(mesage)" git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name and now the file is ready to be commited. To commit now you perform git log  mathematical status git add file_name an	Keywords/Questions:	Notes:  To initialize Git, you have to write git init. You can see that is active git add file_name git commit -m "(mesage)"  git log  the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we actually want to add a mesage to the committed version. I MUST BE AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION. And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committon mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	git init	be typing Is -a which shows the hidden files. To start commiting changes git commit -m "(mesage)"  the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we actually want to add a mesage to the committed version. I MUST BE AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION. And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committon mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	git status	we have to add the file to a staging area, by using git add file_name git log  the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we actually want to add a mesage to the committed version. I MUST BE  AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION.  And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committion mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	git add file_name	and now the file is ready to be committed. To commit now you perform actually want to add a mesage to the committed version. I MUST BE  AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION.  And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committon mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	git commit -m "(mesa
AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION.  And by convention, the normal practice is to write the committon mesage in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed	git log	the command git commit -m "(mesage)" the -m means that we
And by convention, the normal practice is to write the commition mesag in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed		actually want to add a mesage to the commited version. I MUST BE in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed		AS EXPLICIT AS POSIBLE WHEN PERFORMING THIS ACTION.
		And by convention, the normal practice is to write the commition mesag
Summary:		in present. With git log you can see what commits you have performed
Summary:
	Summary:				